Bald eagles in the backyard

■ Sign up for a tour in Cache Creek area this winter and see if you can spot the national bird

By Sara Husby-Good
The Tuleyome Organization

Did you know that there are bald eagles practically in your back yard?

The Cache Creek Wilderness Area is the second largest wintering habitat for bald eagles in California. With their white heads and tails, spotting a bald eagle in the wild is always an impressive sight. It is also an inspiring reminder of how the species has recovered from near extinction.

It is no wonder that the bald eagle is our national bird. Bald Eagles (Haliaeetus leucocephalus) are one of the more spectacular winter visitors to the upper Cache Creek are, as they feed, soar and roost from mid-October to mid-April. This is the best time to look for these brilliant birds as they tend to concentrate in small areas. The waters of Cache Creek support catfish and carp, a primary food source for wintering bald eagles.

Although bald eagles have made a remarkable comeback, they are still considered an endangered species and continued conservation is necessary to keep populations strong.

Wild birds are an integral part of the natural community but they need healthy habitats to survive. Permanent protection for the Berryessa Snow Mountain region will provide a safeguard for all of the unique birds and wildlife with which we are able to come into close contact and enjoy.

If you are looking for an opportunity to get outdoors and view wintering bald eagles the Redbud Trail offers an excellent opportunity to view bald eagles along Cache Creek. The trail extends seven miles to Wilson Valley and its broad grassy bench lands (level or gently sloping areas with steep down slopes along Cache Creek) is an excellent location to view these creatures.

Embracing a tradition of light

TIM MUSIAL'S home on Fernwood Circle was blazing with colored lights for the Christmas season. So were the houses of his neighbors on this enthusiastic cul-de-sac, as well as many other homes in the neighborhoods of Bryte, Broderick, Southport and 'Old West Sacramento.'

The holiday season can be a "showy" time of year in many West Sacramento neighborhoods.

The Fernwood Circle cul-de-sac in the central part of the city, not far from Park Boulevard, offers one such example. Neighbors there join together to offer a visual feast of Christmas lights for visitors.

"Every year, we'll close the court off to vehicle traffic and we have Santa," reports Tim Musial of Fernwood Circle. "People can come by and take pictures with Santa."

The neighbors did just that on December 14.

Musial said the handful of homes in his court started their tradition of enthusiastically decorating for the holidays over a decade ago.

"Loren Alexander is the one who started it, about 11 years ago," Musial told the News-Ledger. "I moved in about five years ago and just joined in."

Longstanding group passes out free Christmas dinner groceries to hundreds

From the Rotary Club of West Sacramento

For decades, a volunteer organization called the West Sacramento Christmas Basket Project has provided fixings for a Christmas meal to locals who need that kind of help.

The tradition continued this Dec. 21-22, when the group passed out canned goods; pastas; vegetables; fruit; soup; potatoes; bread; rice or beans plus a voucher for a free chicken or turkey.

Long-time organizer Helena Helmold started with the project at least 35 years ago. She said that cash donations, such as this year's $2,600 check from The Rotary Club of West Sacramento, are a big part of making the project a success. Rotary's donation paid for the vouchers families have been exchanging for their Christmas turkey or a chicken.

The Christmas Basket Project also distributed free toys this year.

The Yolo Food Bank this year contributed baskets to the Christmas Food Basket and also to Holy Cross and New Discovery Churches, Helmold said. She describes the well-intentioned help as "an experiment" that led to confusion for volunteers at the three sites due to "triple-dipping" by some recipients. "It meant a lot more work for us (to try to match a person waiting for a box to names of those who'd pre-registered)," she said.

Next year, Helmold said, the West Sacramento Christmas Food Basket project will go back to partnering with only Holy Cross.

This has been a tough year personally for Helmold, who is 78. Her youngest, a son, age 37, had a seizure and died eight months ago. She also lost her home of 25 years to foreclosure. The home was paid in full but not insured, she said, because her two Chow dogs – a 'high risk breed' – made the house uninsurable. A fire in 2006 caused by a problem with her stove meant she had to get a loan to repair the damage. Ultimately, she lost the house. But, she said, her current housing, a small temporary apartment in Bryte, "let me bring my cats." Some days, she admits, it's tempting to move cats and self to Honolulu for the balmy weather and to be near her grandchildren.

Work helps keep her here. This year, for example, 450 families received ingredients for their Christmas meal from the West Sacramento Christmas Basket Project.

The Food Bank of Yolo County also took 250 baskets each to Holy Cross and New Discovery, Helmold said. Helmold's volunteers delivered boxes and vouchers to elderly and disabled residents in West Sacramento and Clarksburg, as well as to residents in local low-income housing.

Helmold expressed her gratitude to the West Sacramento Rotary Club:

"I can't begin to tell you enough about those guys. These guys have been our life saver, they really have."

Local businessman Frank Ramos (whose son, Dan, belongs to The Rotary Club of West Sacramento), stepped up on Dec. 20 to provide a last-minute warehouse from which the

He said she kicked and broke the windshield, and jerked the steering wheel while he was driving.

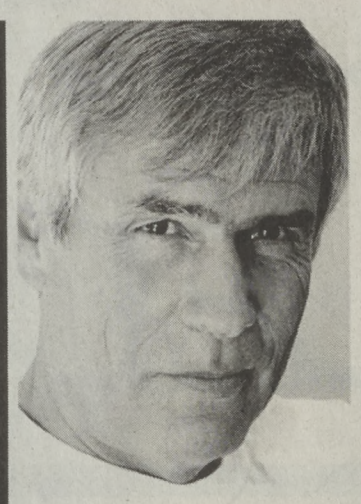
The names our kids know us by

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

About three years ago, I wrote a column entitled "A New Dilemma – Shall I be called Grandpa, Gramps, or Pops"? It stemmed from the fact that I had just become a grandfather for the very first time and that my daughter had immediately set me down and insisted on having the following conversation:

"Okay, Dad," she asked with obvious concern, "what do you want the baby to call you?"

"Pardon me?" I asked her, not having a clue what she was talking about considering my brand new grandson was only a few days old.

"You know," explained my daughter, "what name do you want little Riley calling you when he starts talking?"

"But isn't that at least a year or two away?" I asked.

"It'll be here before you know it," she assured me.

"Well," I finally said after giving it some thought, "why don't you just have the little guy call me Daryl like everyone else does. I would appreciate it, however, if he didn't call me `Dude' like you do, or `Holmes', like your brothers do."

"I'm serious, Dad. We have to figure this out because otherwise it will be very confusing for little Riley, and you should be happy that I'm asking you first instead of his other grandfather. This way you get first choice between Grandpa, Gramps, and Pops. Oh, and by the way, Mom has already chosen Grammy."

After I had stopped chuckling over the fact that my wife would soon be going by the name of Grammy, I asked my daughter if she had a preference.

"Yes," she said without hesitation, "I think Riley should call you Pops."

"Okay," I said, returning her smile, "then Pops it will be", which brings me to my little story.

As all of you parents out there know, the very first lesson of parenthood is that although we think we are going to get our kids to do exactly what we want them to do, they usually have plans of their own. And although my daughter had been very conscientious and organized in her efforts to convert me into `Old Pops Fisher', thankfully, Riley would have none of it. Instead, as soon as he could get the word out, he began calling me Nepa (pronounced `knee-paw').

"No, no, no," my daughter would often try to remind Riley when he would see me and start saying `Nepa, Nepa'. "That is not Nepa – that is Pops. Now can you say Pops?"

"Nepa, Nepa!" would always come the reply.

"I don't mind being Nepa," I finally told my daughter. "In fact, if you ask me, it's much better than being called Pops!"

"But where in the world do you think he came up with a word like Nepa?" my daughter asked me. "And it's not like he can't say the word Pops because I've got him to do it a couple of times. It's just that he really seems to think you're a `Nepa'."

"Good!" I exclaimed. "I mean, anyone can be a regular old Pops, but I'm probably the only Nepa in the whole town."

"Actually," said my daughter as gently as she could, "I think he may be starting to call his other grandfather Nepa, too."

"Rats," I mumbled to myself.

"Maybe it's just a stage," suggested my daughter. "He's only three now, and he'll probably end up calling you Pops when he gets a little older."

"Well," I said, "if I were you, I wouldn't be holding my breath on that."

"Why?"

"Because kids are always making up new words, and for many family members, they end up replacing the real words forever. For instance, you used to call corn `pooh' when you were little, and I still call it that when I see it on my plate. And I never drink a glass of milk without thinking it's a glass of `nook' because that's what you always called milk when you were young. And you of all people should know just how long one of those made-up words can stick with a person since you're the one who came up with `Mamu' (pronounced `Ma-moo') and everyone still calls your poor grandmother that!"

"Grandma loves to be called Mamu!"

"Well, maybe she does now, but there was a time when you were about three or four when I'm pretty sure she wanted to strangle you for always calling her that."

"So," asked my daughter, "then you think this Nepa thing is here to stay, hey?"

"Probably so," I replied. "At least until Riley is a teenager."

"You think he'll start calling you Pops then?"

"Nope, then he'll start calling me things that will make me wish I was still a 'Nepa'!"

> Anyone can be a regular old 'Pops,' but I'm probably the only 'Nepa' in the whole town.

28 local museums are free on Feb. 1

Thirty Sacramento-area museums will offer either free or half-priced admission from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, February 1, to celebrate the 16th Annual Sacramento Museum Day.

28 of the 30 museums will offer free admission, whereas two destinations located in residential areas -- the Sacramento Zoo and Fairytale Town -- will offer half-priced admission to offset parking control and security costs. Coordinated by the Sacramento Association of Museums (SAM) and the Sacramento Convention & Visitors Bureau, this event is also sponsored by Chipotle Mexican Grill.

Many of the museums are within walking distance of each other and easily accessible via public transportation. Event coordinators suggest that guests plan to visit no more than two or three different museums on this day in order to allow adequate time to enjoy the experience and to travel between individual sites.

Some of the destinations are offering special activities during Sacramento Museum Day. For instance, the Aerospace Museum will offer an "open cockpit" day where most aircraft will be open for viewing (weather permitting), a children's art contest and on-site exhibitors such as the Tuskegee Airmen. And, some of today's big monster tractors will hit the road to make a special trip to be on display at the Heidrick Ag History Center in Woodland.

"We are very excited to continue this popular annual tradition and we are proud to welcome two new museums to the event this year," said Sacramento Association of Museums Chair Kristina Swanson in a press release. "With each passing year, more and more community members are introduced to the amazing array of arts, culture and museum offerings available in the Sacramento region. And, we are especially pleased that Chipotle Mexican Grill has continued as a title sponsor. The support of generous corporate sponsors is invaluable and helps to make Sacramento Museum Day possible each year."

While admission is free at 28 of the participating museums during Sacramento Museum Day, admission to two destinations located in residential areas are half-priced as follows: Sacramento Zoo is $5.75 for adults, $3.75 for children ages 2-11 and free for children under two; Fairytale Town is $2.50 per person and free for children ages one and under.

Some locations must limit the number of admissions for safety reasons. The event is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. but note the last guests will be admitted at 4 p.m. More detailed information about participating museums, addresses, limitations, suggested parking and public transit options is available at www.sacmuseums.org (click on "Events"), or by calling the Sacramento Convention & Visitors Bureau at (916) 808-7777.

This year, the Bureau of Land Management will host its free guided hikes to look for wintering bald eagles in the Cache Creek Natural Area in Lake County on Saturdays, Jan. 11, 18 and 25, and Feb. 1, 8, and 15 in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Wilderness Act of 1964. Hikers will enjoy scenic vistas of the Cache Creek Canyon where eagles often soar over the creek or perch in streamside trees. Participants also often spot other wildlife including tule elk, golden eagles, osprey, herons, red-tailed hawks and egrets.

Those interested in participating should reserve space for a specific date by calling the BLM Ukiah Field Office, (707) 468-4000. Early reservations are requested for the popular hikes, which are each limited to 25 participants and fill quickly.

Meet the animals: kids are invited to a 'wild' program at the Davis library

From the County of Yolo

The Mary L. Stephens Davis Branch Library is pleased to present "Animals from Around the World!" on Saturday, January 11, from 2:00 to 3:00 p.m. Children age five and up will take a journey from the library to the continents of Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia, South America and North America through the eyes of live animals representing these parts of the world, and will learn the special contributions they make and how we can all make a difference in maintaining a healthy planet.

"Come meet a global collection of invertebrates, reptiles, amphibians, birds and mammals representing different parts of the world, and learn about the contributions these animals make to diversify our environment," said Yolo County Librarian Patty Wong in a press release. "Let the animals touch you!"

Nature's Critters' programs are designed to help young children better understand and appreciate the world around them.

This program will be held in the Blanchard Room of the Mary L. Stephens Branch Library, located at 315 East 14th Street in Davis. Sponsored by the Friends of the Davis Library, all programs are free and no reservations are required.

For information, visit: www.yolocountylibrary.org.

Schools can receive grant to create 'edible garden'

The Yolo Farm to Fork (YF2F) organization plans to award $10,000 in grants to Yolo County elementary schools that participate in its "Taste Our Garden" initiative.

To encourage kids to eat fresh produce, YF2F wants more schools to involve students in creating edible gardens. With sponsorship from Sutter Davis Hosplital, the program will award up to ten grants of $1,000.

More than 43 percent of children under 18 in Woodland and West Sacramento are obese, reports the group. The gardening effort is intended to help steer such youth into healthier eating habits.

The deadline for schools to apply for a grant is January 15. The YF2F website is located at http://bit.ly/JINYNa. Email info@yolofarmtofork.org.

group could distribute the food boxes.

Rotary's goal this year was to match last year's $2,200 donation to the effort, an all time high, said Rotarian and volunteer club photographer David Kamminga. Club members exceeded that target this year by $400.

Tim Carnahan, Rotary's 2013 Christmas Basket Project chairman, said, "No one is quite sure how long we've been (contributing to the West Sacramento Christmas Basket Project), but when I joined 20 years ago it was already a long-standing project for our club."

Back then, he said, "We used to ask our members to just bring one or two cans of food to each meeting for four straight weeks leading up to Christmas. Over time it became clear that our random food purchases were hard to coordinate into the food baskets and so we began collecting cash instead. For many years (Rotarian) Dick Uno headed up this project and he still helps collect the dough when we pass the hat."

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Butler" (PG-13) -- This historical drama draws on the true story of the butler who served under eight American presidents and witnessed enormous social changes from the windows of the White House. Forest Whitaker plays the fictionalized butler who exchanges measured dialog with presidents from Dwight D. Eisenhower (Robin Williams) to Ronald Reagan (Alan Rickman). Oprah Winfrey plays the butler's wife, his connection to the frustration of the people outside the White House.

Director Lee Daniels puts a soft-toned style on the whole story, making some of the conflicts feel softened. Although the casting decisions for the various presidents can get distracting at times, it's still an entertaining and thoughtful look at the human beings behind history.

"Enough Said" -- Eva (Julia Louis-Dreyfus) is a masseuse and a single mom stressing about her daughter's imminent departure for college. At the same garden party, she befriends elegant poet Marianne (Catherine Keener), and Albert (James Gandolfini), who also is anxious over his outbound daughter. As she falls for adorable Albert, Eva becomes confidantes with Marianne -- who gripes about her ex-husband incessantly. Eva doesn't realize the annoying Neanderthal described by Marianne is actually the charming goof she's in love with.

Forest Whitaker in 'The Butler'

The leads have an easy chemistry, which makes you root for them even more as the cracks and dysfunctions start to form in their relationship. The movie cuts a fine balance between romantic comedy and introspective drama.

"20 Feet from Stardom" (PG-13) -- Through all of Motown, Rock 'n' Roll and R&B, the powerful backup singers provided the extra lift that makes hits into memorable classics. This documentary focuses on the backup singers who have worked with the top names in music, across decades and across genres. It's an important perspective for any music fan to consider. A series of superstars tell their stories about making hit records with these talented women who received little or no credit. Bruce Springsteen takes a sympathetic tone in his interview. As he puts it, it's a long walk from one part of the stage to the other.

"Fruitvale Station" (R) -- In the 24 hours before his death, Oscar Grant III tried to get a head start on his new year's resolutions. He tries to do right by his mother, his girlfriend and his daughter. Michael B. Jordan plays the 22-year-old Oakland native who was shot by police on New Year's Day, 2009. The movie opens with cellphone camera video of the incident in the Bay area's Fruitvale Station, where Grant was thrown on the ground and shot in the back after being accused of starting a fight in a metro train. The film has been drawing awards like a magnet with its praise for powerful performances.

Vivien Leigh: An Intimate Portrait"
by Kendra Bean (Running Press, $30)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

If Vivien Leigh had made only two films, "Gone with the Wind" and "Streetcar Named Desire," she still would have managed to achieve film immortality. Her first love was the stage, but it was her luminous intensity in motion pictures that helped establish her lasting reputation. When Vivien Leigh walked into a room, her aura triggered a magnetism that drew people in and left them spellbound.

Kendra Bean's biography of Leigh is the first to have utilized the Laurence Olivier Archives that features an invaluable collection of personal letters and documents ranging from interview transcripts to film contracts and even medical records. Because of this access, Bean's book is the first to examine in such intimate detail the fascinating, troubled and often misunderstood life of Leigh.

Vivien Mary Hartley was born in 1913 in India, the daughter of a British military officer. When the Hartley family returned to England in 1931, Vivien was enrolled at the Royal Academy Dramatic Arts in London. She married a barrister, Herbert Leigh Holman, a year later. The marriage didn't last, but Vivien used his middle name professionally. After several minor roles, she was cast in a play, "Mark of Virtue," in 1935, and it was during its run that Vivien met Laurence Oliver. The chemistry between them was especially evident in their first film together, "Fire Over England" in 1937.

Oliver was at work in Hollywood on "Wuthering Heights." It was during this period that Vivien came to the attention of David Selznick, who cast her in the role that made her an international star, Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone with the Wind." Leigh's manic depression and ill health marred her career and even ended her marriage to Oliver in 1961.

Bean documents the highs and lows of Leigh's life and career with clarity and sensitivity. The incredible images -- many published for the first time, -- add just the right touch.

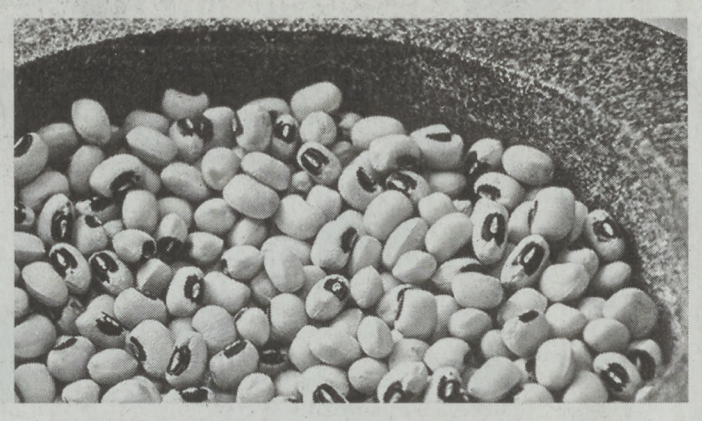
The Kitchen Diva BY Angela Shelf Medearis

Dip Into Health



If you're looking for a delicious and healthy dip for couch-potato snacking or as a treat for your guests during the next big game, serve up some black-eyed peas. Black-eyed peas are actually a bean. They get their names from their characteristic appearance. They are white legumes with a small black dot resembling an eye.

Black-eyed peas are included in the "Meat and Beans" section of the Food Guide Pyramid, created by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The bean can be used as an alterative protein source to meat. In fact, many vegetarians use legumes like black-eyed peas to substitute for meat when planning meals.

One serving of black-eyed peas is equal to one-half cup and contains 70 calories. They are a low-calorie option when served without additional condiments. The majority of calories come from carbohydrate sources (16 grams). Each serving also contains three grams of protein. The beans do not contain any fat or cholesterol. Black-eyed peas are especially rich sources of potassium, zinc and iron.

One of the main health benefits of black-eyed peas is their high fiber content. One-half cup of dry black-eyed peas that are cooked have 5.6 grams of fiber, while a 1/2 cup of canned black-eyed peas contains 4 grams. These amounts will vary among brands.

Fiber is a nutrient that helps regulate your digestive system, and increasing your intake could help alleviate constipation and symptoms of irritable bowel syndrome. Fiber also helps keep your cholesterol levels healthy by preventing cholesterol from being absorbed into your bloodstream, which reduces your risk of developing heart disease. Additionally, high-fiber foods keep you feeling full, since they are digested slowly -- which is important for weight control.

Black-eyed peas make a good addition to soups, stews and salads and also are a healthy side dish. They are available dried, frozen and canned. Dried black-eyed peas are usually the best bargain; however, using rinsed and drained canned peas or frozen and thawed black-eyed peas in a recipe also are a good deal.

Dip into these recipes for Texas Black-Eye Pea "Caviar" and Cheesy Black-Eye Peas. It's a great way to start off your New Year!

TEXAS BLACK-EYE PEA "CAVIAR"

3/4 cup vegetable or olive oil
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
1 can (15-ounce) black eye peas, drained
2 (15-ounces) cans black-eye peas with chopped jalapeno peppers, drained
1 large purple onion, chopped
3 cloves garlic, finely minced
1 green bell pepper, seeds and ribs removed, chopped
1 red bell pepper, seeds and ribs removed, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning or Italian seasoning
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/2 teaspoon sugar (optional)

In a large bowl, mix all of the ingredients together until well-combined. Cover tightly and refrigerate overnight to allow flavors to mingle. Taste; if the mixture is too tart, stir in the sugar. Stir before serving with tortilla or pita chips, or crackers. The dip will keep up to two weeks in the refrigerator. Serves 8 to 10.

CHEESY BLACK-EYE PEA DIP

1 tablespoon olive oil or canola oil
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon Italian seasoning or poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 clove garlic, finely minced
1 1/2 cups (12-ounces) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
1/2 teaspoon mustard (yellow, stone ground, etc.)
2 cans (15-ounces each) black-eyed peas, drained and rinsed; 4 cups frozen and thawed; or 4 cups cooked and drained
1 jalapeno pepper, seeds removed, finely chopped
1 can (4-ounces) chopped green chilies

1. In a medium saucepan over medium-low heat, add oil and melt butter. Add chopped onion, poultry seasoning, salt and pepper, and saute until golden in color. Add garlic and cook for 30 seconds longer.

2. Turn heat to low and add cheese and mustard, stirring until melted. Add the black-eyed peas, chopped jalapeno and green chiles. Cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Serve hot in slow cooker or chafing dish. Serves 8.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. Telephone area codes are "916" unless otherwise specified. We have included several New Year's eve events because most subscribers will receive this edition on Dec. 31.

Christmas tree recycling

There are three ways for West Sacramento residents to recycle their used, formerly-live Christmas trees. Choose from among the following options after removing all decorations from the tree:

First, you may cut it into small enough (less than three-foot) sections and fit the pieces into your yard waste cart or bundled next to it, for pickup on your regular service day.

Secondly, you may take the tree to Whitey's Jolly Kone between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Sat., Jan. 4. If you make a donation at the dropoff, it will benefit Cub Scout Pack 49.

Third, you may recycle your Christmas tree (limit two per person) to the Yolo County Landfill between Woodland and Davis. The landfill will also recycle your old electronics, such as computers, TVs and monitors now made obsolete by your new holiday gifts. For more information, call (530) 666-8729 or visit www.yolocounty.org.

New Year's Eve

The West Sacramento Moose Lodge is hosting a New Year's Eve party, with prime rib and champagne. The Dec. 31 event includes live music from "The Miller Hi-Lites." Tickets are $25/person or $45/couple. Buy them from the bartender at the lodge, which opens daily at 2 p.m. at 3240 Jefferson Blvd. in Southport, or from a Moose member. For information, call 203-6017 or (after 2) 371-9684.

Fireworks, Tower Bridge

The annual New Year's Eve fireworks show returns to Old Sacramento on Dec. 31, with shows at 9 p.m. and midnight, viewable from the West Sacramento riverfront near the ziggurat, or from Old Sacramento. In Old Sac, there will also be street entertainment, live music and children's events. You may bring blankets and chairs, but no alcohol. The midnight "sky concert" will be broadcast on FM 96.9, The Eagle.

The Tower Bridge will be closed to cars from 7:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., and will close to pedestrians for 30 minutes before and after each concert. For more information, visit www.nyesacramento.com.

College aid

Yolo County teens and their parents are invited to a free workshop on college financial aid, scheduled for 2-4 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 12, at the Davis branch library, 315 E. 14th Street. Participants are encouraged to sign up early (space is limited) and be ready to take notes. Reservations open Jan. 2: call (530) 757-5598, email DavisLibrary@yolocounty.org, or visit the Davis library's information desk.

Bible study

Horizon Christian Fellowship invites you to a weekly Bible study themed "The Battlefield of the Mind," led by Joyce Meyers. The group begins Wed., Jan. 8, from 10:30 a.m. to noon at 1800 Manzanita Way. Day care provided.

Energy upgrades

An alternative financing program is available for property owners who wish to upgrade their heating and air conditioning systems, solar systems, roofs, windows and other systems. The "PACE" program offered by Ygrene Energy Fund is now available in Yolo County.

The program offers 100 percent financing to projects on properties that have at least 15 percent equity, and is available for both homeowners and commercial projects. The financing is bound to the property rather than the individual or business on it, and transfers with the property to a new owner like a property tax.

Visit www.CleanEnergyYolo. Using the promo code "UPGRADEYOLO" will earn a savings on the $50 application fee.

Library + museums

Your Yolo County library card can earn you free and low-cost passes to Northern California museums beginning Dec. 1, through the "Discover & Go" program. Visit www.discover.yolocountylibrary.org.

For general library information, visit www.yolocountylibrary.org or look for the library on Facebook.

Art show

Works by members of the West Sacramento Art Guild will be on display at the West Sacramento Community Center's gallery (1075 West Capitol Avenue) through December. View art in media such as various paints, metal, air brush, embroidery, photography and more. Some works are for sale.

For more information, contact Agnes Nilsen, 374-1810.

Support RCHS library

Help the school library at River City High School encourage young readers: donate a few dollars for the purchase of new books. You may mail a check to River City High School Bookkeeper, Attn: Library Donations, 1 Raider Lane, West Sacramento CA 95691. Free shade trees

You can become eligible to receive free shade trees from the City of West Sacramento. First, you must attend a free shade tree workshop, scheduled for 6-7:30 p.m. on Jan. 8 at the West Sacramento Community Center, 1075 West Capitol Avenue.

Nine specially-chosen tree species are available. Individuals, businesses, schools, churches and nonprofits are all eligible. For more information, see www.westsactrees.org or call 617-4620 to reserve a space at the workshop.

Don't Rush to Flush

Save the waterways; don't flush unneeded medications down the toilet or dump them in the trash. You may leave your unwanted meds in a drop-off bin at Jefferson Pharmacy, 1029 Jefferson Blvd., for free.

Little League

West Sacramento Little League offers spring youth baseball signups. Register Friday, Jan. 3, 6-8 p.m. at Wicked West.

For information on fees, residency and deadlines, visit www.westsacll.org. Email any questions to westsacll@gmail.com.

YoloArts

December's show at Gallery 625 in Woodland is "True Colors – Celebrating Unity Through Art and Culture," described by YoloArts as a "multicultural exhibit of art expressing 'who we are' as a community of many different cultures and beliefs. Cultures represented by the participating artists include Russian, Ukranian, Hispanic and Native American. The opening reception is scheduled for 5:30-8:30 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 6.

The gallery is located at the county administration building, 625 Court Street in Woodland (next to the old courthouse) and the exhibit can be viewed during the offices' hours. For more information, visit www.yoloarts.org or call 530-406-4844.
